As the people begin to learn the truth bout McKinley prices, and the shameless mendacity of the "reformer" be-comes clearer from day to day, he is Plaster Michifiled with terror at the prospect of the certain punishment which his guilty ouscience tells him must surely come. He has stopped talking about prices altogether, and even denies that he ever said the McKinley bill had sent them up all along the line. But he did say so and must take the consequence. It is our business to prove his untruthfulness, and evidence is rapidly coming in. The list from which we took the articles cited would 2054 furnish to our opponents some items 19 whose prices have advanced since a year ago. Our contention is that now, as has always been the case under our tariff system, the general course of prices is downward, and the articles which have 1334 fallen are far more numerous than those which have advanced in price. To show that the greater number of things in 1534 1234 common use have not been affected by the tariff would convict the "reformer" 1334 of preposterous exaggeration, but to show, as we have done, that numbers of 0834 these things have actually fallen under the new bill places his mendacity beyond a doubt.

Questions Answered. A correspondent in Tecumseh asks: 1. How much (what per cent.) of every kind of farm produce do we export? 2. How do the free lists in the Mills and farm produce do we import? 1. About 10 per cent. of all kinds of agricultural produce. Something over 5 per cent, exclusive of cotton, and about 5 per cent. exclusive of cotton and tobacco. 2. The Mills bill made a reduction in revenue-or in tariff taxation. as Free-traders put it-of about $22,000,-000 by additions to the free list. The McKinley bill makes a reduction of about $60,000,000 by enlarging the free list. 3. About $300,000,000.

McKinley bills compare? 3. How much
